We all had something in mind.
A small campus,
Where recognition was a means for greeting
Where professors knew your full name,
But called you by your first.

A handsome college,
Where grass was not a place to keep off of,
And the shrubs were not in pots along the sidewalks,
Where trees were big and green and natural,
Good for lying under, or teaching near, or thinking among.

An atmosphere of tradition,
Where buildings were more brick than glass,
Where sidewalks were red and uneven.

An academic community,
Where you could study if you need to,
Or wanted to,
Where grades were earned and not rewarded.

A school where beauties wait eagerly at year's begin,
Yet almost the whole population goes home on Fridays,
And the campus sleeps.

A place to enjoy life,
And relive youthful times, as Halloween,
Yet regroup with dignity,
And journey down that narrow road.

A climate where winter meant long sleeves,
But often more,
And snow was something wonderful,
And rare.

All of this we were looking for;
Some of us found part of it,
Some of us overlooked what we found,
Some of us looked further.

College Night 1973

GLINDA OGLE GODWIN and MIKE MURPHY
Purple Leaders

Dedicated to Donovan Hayes and Jack Honeycutt

And once again, students at the campus of the University of Montevallo prepared for the most fulfilling of traditions: COLLEGE NIGHT. Many hard hours of endless work were devoted by members of each side, Purple and Gold. However, it all escapes in the anticipation of the final decision of victory.

College Night 1973 was no different and the victory planned by the GOLD SIDE prevailed. This does not mean that one side won and the other lost, because through the active involvement and dedication among the individual sides, neither can be an absolute winner or loser. In its own perspective, BOTH sides were victorious.

And as a result of the cooperation offered, past and present, College Night 1973 was dedicated to Donovan Hayes and Jack Honeycutt.

The Montevallo Women's Volleyball team won Alabama and Regional honors in this year's competition. By doing so they defended the school colors at the Women's Inter-collegiate National Volleyball Championships at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, February 1-3, 1973.

They placed 17th in the nation, tied with Southern California. This was the first National Competition for a team yielded from the University of Montevallo. Hopefully, it is the beginning of a great future.
